This photograph was taken at the end of June, in a sailing resort by the lake Charzykowskie. It was a day on which me and the people shown on the photo passed a sailing exam and became sailors.

Even though it's just a group photo by the lake, it has a lot of meaning to me. When I first arrived at the resort a week before the photo was taken, all of those people were just strangers to me. However throughout the week all of us sailed, studied, had our ups or downs and made memories together. By the end of the week we were no longer strangers, not even just friends, but a family. It was this great sailing adventure that has built our amazing bond. This is why this photo, or rather the moment captured on it has so much meaning to me. It was a time of joy and sadness that all of us felt together. A last day of our shared adventure, yet the first day of our story as sailors. It was one of those perfect moments, with the right people and a perfect surrounding of the lake at sunset. It was a moment that you remember for the rest of your life.

I really recommend coming to lake Charzykowskie and learning how to sail to everyone. Not only you can learn an amazing skill, but you can also spend time at one of Polish nature's treasures and if you're lucky, create lifelong friendships.
